King of Mountain second biggest tourney in state

By Shawn Jarrard

When it comes to wrestling, it doesn't get much bigger than King of the Mountain, where 25 teams will be bringing their A game this weekend in pursuit of the title.

"This is to be the 10th anniversary edition of the Varsity King of the Mountain, and it's going to be the biggest one we've ever had," said Indians Head Coach Jeff Stowers. "The most teams we've ever had before was 21, and we've got 25 coming in for the varsity tournament this year, and then another four that are coming for the JV part on Saturday."

"So, we've got 29 teams total from four different states – Florida, Georgia, North Carolina and Tennessee. We should have a lot of good, solid wrestling going on, a lot of good people coming in from out of town to spend the weekend up here in the mountains, and hopefully they'll spend some money at some local businesses and restaurants, places like that. I know several teams are staying in hotels, so that's a good thing for the community. It's just a really, really good event."

The Towns County Senior Center is growing its Meals on Wheels program, and for this holiday season, it is starting a Holiday Gift Certificate program for people to purchase meals for someone in need.

"We are adding people rapidly to our Meals on Wheels program. We're kind of growing faster than we had anticipated. Basically, we're asking for donations to provide meals on wheels for additional people as they come up and get approved for our services," said Senior Center Director Bobbie Parker.

Currently, Meals on Wheels runs every day and serves 37-40 meals a day.

"We run every week," said Greg Langevin, Meals on Wheels delivery truck driver. "We also have clients that are too far outside of the city, and

Voting precincts back in order ahead of 2016 election cycle

By Mason Mitcham

The Towns County Board of Elections met on Tuesday, Nov. 24, to sign into law some much-needed adjustments to the Towns County election maps.

Board Chair Janet Oliva explained that the maps had been re-drawn incorrectly several years ago, which effected voting precincts in Towns County for the 2014 congressional elections.

"At the time, we had lost our board chair, so the chair and the co-chair, which were myself and Mark Dehler, were fairly new to the positions. And during the election the voters came out and went to what was normally their assigned precincts. And when they got there they realized that their seating locations had been changed and they had not received any notification," she said.

Since neither the Towns

County Commissioner's Office nor the board of elections had any knowledge of the changes, the first thing the board did was to contact the Georgia Secretary of State's office to try to fix the problem.

"In essence, the problem was that back in 2012 the state changed our mapping system, and from what we understand, there was some kind of database loss, where when they dumped data into their system, their computers lost the data. So they began to try to re-map or restructure our precincts," Oliva said.

"The state then asked some staff from the Towns County Board of Elections to

Chesnutt and Diffie fill Anderson Music Hall with classic Country Music

By Mason Mitcham

Anderson Music Hall was packed on Saturday, Nov. 28, as fans from all over the Southern United States came to see Mark Chesnutt and Joe Diffie perform their legendary Country Music act.

When Chesnutt and Diffie took the stage together, it was obvious the two artists liked and respected one another. Further, it was obvious that they appreciated their time spent with fans.

Between songs, they would often pause and give brief anecdotes about their Thanksgiving, their personal lives, or the inspiration behind certain lyrics.

"I'm not kidding when I say that Mark's my favorite person in the music industry. One of my favorite singers, too, I'll tell you that. Every single night we do these kinds of things, Mark is on all the time," said Diffie at one point.

"It's really difficult working with Diffie because we laugh. We make each other laugh so much. It's really hard, man, because all we want to do is laugh the whole time," added Chesnutt.

Before the show, fans could purchase "Meet and Greet" passes to go backstage and meet the singers. For some, this opportunity was a dream come true.

"I listen to Mark Chesnutt on a daily basis. I do like him a good bit. I've been listening to him since I was a teenager. This is a big deal, the first time I've seen them. So this is a big deal for me," said Eddie Appleby, 27.

Appleby, wearing one of the "Meet and Greet" badges around his neck, said that he preferred Mark Chesnutt's music to almost anything else.

"I like Mark Chesnutt because it's true Country Music. He's keeping the tradition alive,

By Todd Forrest

December is upon us, and the Towns County Sheriff's annual Empty Stocking Fund is gearing up for another successful holiday season by allowing the less fortunate children in the county the opportunity to enjoy Christmas to the fullest.

During his eight years in office, Towns County Sheriff

Chris Clinton has been on the frontlines, encouraging the community to contribute cash or toys to the TCSO's Empty Stocking Fund.

While the majority of the donations are made between Thanksgiving and Christmas, Sheriff Clinton pointed out that donations are accepted year-round.

"We actually take donations throughout the year,

The Young Harris Christmas Tree Lighting tradition has been going on for almost 50 years, and it isn't going to stop anytime soon.

On Friday, Dec. 4, at 6 p.m., Young Harris Mayor Andrea Gibby, City Hall and residents will come together to light the Christmas tree at Mayor's Park in a celebration of community and holiday cheer.

One big attraction, of course, will be the appearance of Santa Claus.

"The mayor speaks and then they turn the tree on, and then they have Santa Claus," said City Clerk Nicolette Wade. "He comes inside and talks to all the kids and gives them some gifts."

Santa Claus has been attending the lighting ceremony for as long as Wade can remember. He typically brings candy canes to give to the kids.
