Legal Organ of Towns County

www.townscountyherald.net

Your Hometown Newspaper Since 1928

75 Cents

Publication Number 635540 Volume 93 Number 06

Wednesday, December 8, 2021

Hiawassee, Sheriff's Office coordinate Christmas efforts

By Jeremy Foster Towns County Herald Staff Writer

City of Hiawassee hosted its fourth annual "Light Up Hiawassee" event, which saw the square being lit up with Christmas lights that will remain on through the New Year's holi-

The event ran in coniunction with the Towns County Sheriff's Office Christmas Parade that made its way from the Georgia Mountain Fairgrounds to deliver Santa to the square, complete with horses, classic by local businesses, volunteer organizations, churches and the Towns County High School

Everything kicked off around 4 p.m., when residents began to gather with friends, family and children to celebrate the occasion and enjoy community cheer, which included ac-

Square and pictures with Santa come together and experience inside the Old Rock Jail.

And with sponsors on On Saturday, Dec. 4, the hand to revel in the spirit, there come involved by volunteering were many things to enjoy that to assist with city events or offer evening, such as SERVPRO ideas may contact Ordiales at doing ornament decorating, the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary Post #7807 grilling hot dogs, Ingles providing cookie decorating, Kevin Mullens spinning cotton candy and brewing hot chocolate, the local Boy Scouts of America helping the Sheriff's Office with gour-met popcorn, and City Hall's Letters to Santa booth.

"We wanted to make this cars, and plenty of festive floats event big so we could just bring the community together and have a good time," Hiawassee Mayor Liz Ordiales said. "This is just a great event all around, munity-decorated floats as and I am very proud that the well as beautiful horses, while city puts it together every year.

thing for me has always been to aboard Towns County Fire bring our community together. Ladder 1.

small-town living."

People wishing to be-706-896-2202 or mayor@hiawasseega.gov.

As noted above, the Sheriff's Office Christmas Parade got underway from the Georgia Mountain Fair-grounds and traveled up Main a lot of people came out to Street Hiawassee, ending at the square but with plenty of candy tossing and holiday greetings in between the two destinations. Sheriff Ken Henderson began the parade in his truck and stopped along the way to join in throwing candy to children. Trailing him were comeveryone awaited the arrival "The most important of Santa bringing up the rear

After arriving, Santa de-

tivities on the Hiawassee Town is just really fun for everyone to livered a public message from the podium on the square, saying he was heading over to the Old Rock Jail and for kids to come and hang out with him to tell him what they wanted for Christmas.

Of course, every child jumped at the chance to visit with Santa for a while before going home happy and filled to the brim with Christmas cheer.

celebrate," Sheriff Henderson said. "Everything has gone really well, and it is a good time

'We are proud to be a part of this, and our goal is to be able to work with everybody, because that is what makes a truly great community and environment, the ability for everyone to come together for each other.

"It is especially important to have things like this available during the holiday season. See Christmas Fun, Page 8A

Instead of riding into town on a sleigh, Santa joined the Sheriff's Office Christmas Parade aboard Towns County Fire Ladder 1 Saturday night. Photo by Lowell Nicholson

Rep. Gunter, Sen. Hatchett and Police Chief visit residents halts COVID vaccine mandate

L-R: Paul Smith, William "Scotty" Scott, Stan Gunter and Michael Borkman in the Dec. 3 breakfast meeting of the Mountain Movers and Shakers. Photo by Mark Smith

By Mark Smith Towns County Herald Staff Writer

and Shakers welcomed Georson, Chief Deputy Gene Moss, respective chambers, were gia District 8 State Rep. Stan Gunter and Hiawassee Police Chief Paul Smith in their Dec. 3 regular breakfast meeting at Sundance Grill.

Among the attendees were District 50 State Sen. Bo

Commissioner Cliff Bradshaw, Enotah Judicial Circuit House and Senate, wanting to The Mountain Movers Clough, Sheriff Ken HenderClough, Sheriff Ken HenderClough Sheriff Ken He and Sheriff's Auxiliary Director Anna Denton.

Paramount among the issues Gunter spoke on was the redistricting that the Georgia General Assembly conducted over the last three weeks fol-Hatchett, Towns County Sole lowing the 2020 census.

Gunter said the State able to work out solutions "to comply with the Voting Rights Act, to draw districts (without) splitting counties, (and to) keep communities together."

'We should have a group of maps that will survive any See Movers & Shakers, Page 6A

Federal judge temporarily

Hospitalizations, cases trending upward

By Shawn Jarrard Towns County Herald Editor

The Dec. 6 deadline for health care workers to comply with a nationwide COVID-19 vaccine mandate has been postponed by a federal judge in Louisiana, effectively pausing implementation of the mandate locally.

mandate was requiring all people working with health care providers that receive federal Medicare and Medicaid funding to have received an initial dose of any of the approved COVID vaccines by Dec. 6, with full vaccination expected by Jan. 4, 2022.

constitutionality, U.S. District Judge Terry A. Doughty ordered a preliminary injunction on Nov. 30 blocking the national mandate by the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, or CMS.

The judge's decision, which came on the heels of a separate national injunction from earlier in November that blocked the Biden adminis-Until last week, the tration's vaccine mandate for companies with 100 or more workers, is certain to be appealed to a higher court.

"There's still no guarantee that it's not going to be a CMS mandate at some point,' Union General Health System Chief Nursing Officer Julia Barnett said. "How we have to look Citing concerns over at it right now is as a temporary delay that gets rid of those deadlines that we felt were unrealistic for our staff anyway.'

Julia Barnett UGH Chief Nursing Officer

See Vaccine Mandate, Page 6A

TCSO, Henderson to treat kids to 'Shop With The Sheriff'

By Shawn Jarrard Towns County Herald Editor

Following the Dec. 4 Towns County Sheriff's Office Christmas Parade, Sheriff Ken Henderson is continuing to get into the holiday spirit by hosting an all-new "Shop With The Sheriff" program to take children Christmas shopping on Dec. 13.

It's a new twist on a classic tradition, as the Sheriff's Office has been providing presents for kids of the community for more than 30 years, most recently through the Empty Stocking Fund, which simply became too difficult to manage logistically and with toy storage in recent years.

That's why, in 2021, See Shop With Sheriff, Page 6A

Sheriff Ken Henderson is looking forward to taking kids Christmas shopping Dec. 13 during the inaugural "Shop With The Sheriff" program. Photo/Facebook

Annual speaking contest goes regional for '22 main event

L-R: Top of Georgia Speaking Contest organizers Terrylynne Marshall, Charlotte Sleczkows-Photo by Brittany Holbrooks ki, Jeff Langley and Gerry Chotiner.

By Brittany Holbrooks Towns County Herald Staff Writer

Interested middle and high school students from around the region are beginning to prepare for the annual Top of Georgia Speaking Contest set for March 14-21, 2022.

For the first time, the traditionally Towns Countyfocused event will welcome participants from neighboring Union County as well as Clay County, North Carolina.

The contest has come a long way from its humble beginnings as a Towns County GOP-sponsored event by Sam Fullerton in 2009, when it featured about a dozen contestants showcasing their public speaking development in the Towns County High School cafeteria.

Over the years, the contest has consisted of partnerships between the GOP, the nonpartisan civic group the Mountain Movers and Shakers, and Towns County 4-H, with student participation rising to student involvement, the con-21 contestants during the last test has the potential to recruit a outing in 2019.

"Initially, the topics were patriotic," said current contest organizer Dr. Gerry Chotiner. retired dermatologist and public speaking advocate who, after moving to Towns County five years ago, became a mentor to students looking to master the art of speech.

The program has evolved since those early days to allow students to choose their own topics within reason, and now with a wider geographic area of greater variety of sponsors and See Speaking Contest, Page 6A

Hit-and-run suspect dies in secondary car crash on GA 2

By Shawn Jarrard Towns County Herald

County died in a car crash on the Towns County side of Clayton Mountain after being involved in a hit-and-run accident shortly after 11 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 26.

56, was driving east on Georgia 2 in a black 2000 Chevrolet Silverado when he rear-ended the vehicle of a Hiawassee woman attempting to make a left turn from the eastbound lane of Georgia 2 onto Upper Hightower Road, per the Georgia State Patrol.

too closely behind the second damage," GSP said. "No trees vehicle, leading to the impact, after which he fled the scene, GSP concluded.

About a mile east of the A man out of Rabun accident, Chavez apparently lost control of his truck and traveled off the north shoulder of the road and overturned down an embankment, per

Not wearing a seatbelt, Antonio Paramo Chavez, he was ejected from the vehicle and died at the scene, according to the Towns County Coroner's > GSP noted that Towns County EMS workers "could smell the odor of alcohol" on Chavez, and toxicology results were pending at press time.

The vehicle sustained Chavez was following significant front and front left

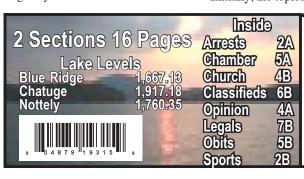

Georgia 2 at Upper Hightower Road was the scene of a Nov. 26 hit-and-run that ended up in a fatal single-car crash about a mile east of the intersection. Photo by Lowell Nicholson

in the area were struck head on. Prior to this traffic crash, a truck matching (Chavez's vehicle) description struck and fled

See Fatal Crash, Page 6A

BASKETBALL 12/7 @ Tallulah Falls 6 PM 12/10 @ Union Co. 7 PM WRESTLING 12/8 515 Classic @ Union 5:30 PM

New COVID-19 Variant Info

VFW Children's Christmas Party Dec. II

See page 7A

Movers & Shakers...from Page 1A

court challenges, which, by the Georgia way, have already been filed against these maps, I think," said Gunter, intimating that no matter how the maps are drawn, there will be fights over the process, though hopefully nothing to overturn the work.

Gerrymandering, said, is a bad word, but that's exactly what the process of redistricting is, and it's acceptable as long as it is done reasonably and lawfully.

If it gets out of hand as Georgia House, Senate and said, then it's turned over to the courts to decide.

"We didn't want that." he said. "The overall population in this district (on the new maps) is 59,244. Here in Towns County, it's 12,493 (21% of the district), with 10,923 over the age of 18.

'Union County has 42% of the population of the district, with (a population of) 24,632 and 20,808 (over the age of 18).

"White County has 37 percent of the population in the district, with (a population of) 22,119 and an over-18 population of 17,881."

Gunter said that, because South Georgia experienced a population decrease overall, the redistricting shifted north so the districts could maintain their population numbers. Consequently, the Ninth Congressional District lost its southernmost counties to the Tenth District.

Moving along, Gunter said vaccine mandates would be on the '22 legislative agenda because of the huge number of health care workers leaving the field over such mandates, thereby causing big problems after attending the Technology for the health care industry and, by extension, the people who need health care.

The issue of undocumented immigrants being dropped off clandestinely in Georgia was raised in the meeting. Gunter and Hatchett, who stepped to the front of the ing that autonomous vehicles, room, said that if they knew of specific incidents, they would act on them.

segued into what the legislature has done to combat the the huge burden on the power tain Movers and Shakers, to widespread perception of corgrid, the potential chemical

"What we did with Senate Bill 202 is, the Secretary of State used to be the head of the Election Board in the State of Georgia; we took that away from him. We took the power away from the Secretary of State," Hatchett said, to clapping of approval from the attendees.

"The legislature now is going to appoint the new chairman of the Elections Board," he continued. "Moving forward, there's a lot of people it did several years ago when in the state that don't trust the the Democrats controlled the election systems anymore, and our job, and what we've talked Governor's Office, Gunter about multiple times, is, how do we restore that trust?

"With Senate Bill 202 requiring ID to vote absentee. the Democrats said we're racist, (that) it's 'Jim Crow' - it's not. Just show an ID. You've got to show an ID to do (everything) else. That is the law elections now are going to be

Senate Bill 202, the State middle-school aged, selected Elections Board may now take over any county elections apparatus that has been shown to be operating without integrity.

Looking to the next legislative session, Gunter said people can expect to see a variety of issues taken up, including Critical Race Theory, Constitutional Carry, cybersecurity, tax treatment of tiny homes, legal apportionment in tort cases, and adjustment of the Georgia appeals process.

an issue that might enjoy new life in Georgia because of redistricting, Gunter said, adding that he's heard the governor may sponsor it and that it for members of his family. may well pass this time.

Association of Georgia legislaelectric vehicles are the thing of the future worldwide.

world is looking to go with electric vehicles. So, get ready. It's coming," he said, addthose that drive themselves, will be part of it as well.

Several comments were Next, the discussion made criticizing the move to electric vehicles because of ruption regarding elections in pollution of discarded/wrecked electric cars and batteries, and the reduction in fuel tax income to maintain roadway infrastructure.

Finally, Chief Paul Smith gave an update and overview of Hiawassee PD's Shop with a Hero Christmas program for children.

'We're fortunate to live and work in this community where we get so much support and love," Smith said. "So, I thank you for that. Every year we take about 30 to 40 kids Christmas shopping. This year we've got 45 signed up (to go

"The last day of school (before Christmas) is a half day, so, they get out at noon, we bring them pizza, they have a pizza party at the school, and we load up the bus with children. One bus just for kids, and one bus is empty, because when they come back, it's now. Moving forward, the filled with all the Christmas presents.

Kids benefiting from Gunter added that, with Shop with a Hero in 2021 are through the school system with the help of Towns County Family Connection. This year, Smith said he and his fellow first responders will be taking 45 kids Christmas shopping at the Blairsville Walmart.

Additionally, Smith said each child will get $200 to shop with plus a new pair of shoes and a new winter jacket of their choice.

The chief told a heartwarming story of his first Constitutional Carry is time taking kids shopping 10 years ago. His charge first went and picked out toys, then started putting the toys back, exchanging them for presents

'That's the majority of Gunter commented that, the kids," Smith said. "They have this money that they get to spend on themselves, but tive retreat, he is confident that they're spending it on their family, too."

> Michael Borkman and 'Every automaker in the William "Scotty" Scott, who manage the Mountain Movers and Shakers, passed the hat after Smith spoke and collected $438 for Shop with a Hero.

> > Blue Ridge Mountain Broadband Director Alex King will be the featured speaker in the Dec. 10 regular breakfast meeting of the Mouncommence at 8 a.m. at the Sundance Grill in Hiawassee.

Vaccine Mandate...from Page 1A

What this means locally is that health care providers comfortable with the idea of a Johnson & Johnson vaccine. such as Union General have more time to prepare for any eventual mandate by either encouraging staff to get vaccinated or collecting federally recognized exemptions.

Currently, exemptions are only being granted for "recreligious beliefs, observances, or practices," per CMS, with no exemption presently for individuals who have recovered from COVID-19.

To combat the spread of the coronavirus, CMS initiated the mandate as part of an "emergency regulation" Nov. 4.

CMS's goal is to bring health care providers into compliance," the federal health agency said last month. "However, the agency will not hesitate to use its full enforcement authority to protect the health and safety of patients."

enforcement" "Full would entail cutting off federal Medicare and Medicaid funding, which makes up a sizeable portion of monies collected by many medical establishments.

Union General Health System – the largest employer in Union County and one of the largest in Towns – receives between 70%-75% of its revenues via federal funding, including Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement programs, according to Barnett.

A loss of CMS funding would be devastating for the Health System, Barnett said, adding that such a major revenue cut would require the hospitals and nursing homes here to either dramatically reduce services or perhaps close altogether.

Up to this point, vaccination by employees has been optional. Barnett said Union General Health System desires to allow individuals to direct their own health care decisions: but faced with a serious threat to much needed CMS funding, compliance with a valid vaccine mandate would not be optional.

To be clear, Barnett encourages all eligible individuals to get vaccinated, as she believes the vaccines to be both safe and effective; she has yet to see any vaccine-related hospitalizations at Union General, and as for efficacy, she supervised the Health System's medical efforts through the recent COVID surge that overwhelmingly affected the unvaccinated.

Still, she said she is un- cines, and the single shot of the mandate for anyone who has a personal reason to forgo vaccination, including any of the roughly 2,000 people currently working a mandate, would need to comply or face termination.

As the mandate was not ognized medical conditions or implemented this week, Bar- mer, though the numbers are way nett said she does not have a completed list of staff, contrachave been in compliance via vaccination or exemption.

And though she's unanticipates losing workers if the mandate is eventually enforced. This would be unfortucare sector – like many sectors – is severely understaffed.

"I do think this is something that everybody understands is not a Union General Health System mandate but a CMS mandate," Barnett said. rale and we wish it was not being done, I don't think that the hospital for it.'

In order to be prepared should the mandate be reinstated, the Health System is and other states. continuing to educate its workforce about the benefits of vaccination, including encouragturn in an "applicable exemption," Barnett said.

Approximately 76,000 health care facilities and more workers are subject to the mandate, which the White House has said "will enhance patient safety in health care settings."

The rule applies to employees regardless of whether clinical," per the White House, "and includes employees, stuwho work at a covered facility that receives federal funding from Medicare or Medicaid.

"It also includes individuals who provide treatment equipment, PPE and more. or other services for the facility under contract or other arrangements.'

So far, COVID-19 booster shots that have been rolling which has only called for first BioNTech and Moderna vac-

COVID IN REGION

Union General has conwith Union General who, under tinued to see a small vet steady rotation of new COVID-19 inpatients since the record delta surge receded at the end of sumdown from their recent peak.

Over the last two weeks, tors and volunteers who would however, the Health System has experienced a noticeable uptick in COVID hospitalizations and outpatient visits, but Barnett aware of any Health System said it's too early to tell if the employees quitting prior to the area is looking at the onset of mandate going into effect, she another big surge for the winter months like in January 2021.

"There's all the news on this new variant, but we nate, as Barnett said the health haven't really seen any different types of presentations (locally) from what we've been seeing over the past few months, and about the same severity of illness range as well," Barnett said.

Above, Barnett is refer-"So, while it might affect mo-ring to the latest "variant of concern" that has been dubbed "omicron," of which the first (our staff) necessarily blame known domestic case was discovered in California last week, quickly followed by the first known case in Georgia

At press time, delta was still the predominately circulating COVID-19 variant ing people to attend in-house in the U.S., but omicron has vaccine clinics or otherwise many public health officials concerned due to early indications of increased transmissibility, as well as the relatively high number and kind than 17 million health care of mutations the virus seems to have undergone, potentially to the detriment of protection induced by the current crop of vaccines and recovery from prior infection.

Regardless of what varitheir positions are clinical or non- ant may or may not be looming, Barnett said the Health System remains vigilant in preparing dents, trainees, and volunteers for whatever comes next by applying lessons learned over the course of the pandemic, e.g., stocking up on additional hospital beds, respiratory

If COVID figures do continue to climb and there appears to be a bigger problem on the horizon, Barnett said the Health System will resume out in the last couple months its efforts of regularly updating are not a part of the mandate, the community on the numbers of local COVID hospitalizaand second doses of the Pfizer- tions and general vaccination status among inpatients.

Fatal Crash...from Page 1A

Continuing, "Due to the the fatal accident. damages and evidence from included statements by the other driver, who recognized the headlights of the Hospital in Blairsville. vehicle, which she identified pickup." The Silverado also transferred dark-colored paint to the woman's car in the initial Georgia State Patrol listed several "Operator Contribcluding "Following Too Close" for the hit-and-run crash, and

The woman whose vethe prior crash, this vehicle was hicle was rear-ended was not identified as the hit-and-run ve- transported from the scene for able to verify that Chavez had medical treatment, however, been issued a "Limited Term' "Evidence from the prior upon returning home, her husband drove her for medical evaluation at Union General

Chavez's body was takas a "late '90s GMC or Chevy en to Rabun County, and he will be transported to Mexico, where his wife and other members of his family will conduct funeral services, the Coroner's Office said.

At the time of the acuting Factors" for Chavez, in- cident, Chavez was wearing clothing that indicated he had Coroner's Office offers our been working that day, perhaps "Under the Influence" and doing masonry or some other Coroner Tamela Cooper said.

"Too Fast for Conditions" for type of construction work, according to the Coroner's Of-

> The Coroner's Office was Georgia driver's license, which requires customers of the Department of Driver Services to present documentation proving that they are lawfully present in the United States.'

First responders at the scene that evening were the Towns County Fire Department, Sheriff's Office, GSP, Towns EMS, and the Coroner's

"The Towns County condolences to the family,"

Shop With Sheriff...from Page 1A

Sheriff Henderson has decided dren are treated to the extra or have some different opinion tradition, drawing inspiration the Blairsville Walmart. from area Christmas programs sponsored by first responders, in which local law enforcement officers serve as chaperones to take children shopping for Christmas.

Of course, Sheriff Henderson is thankful for all of the community-based support that has enabled his office to take these deserving local children Christmas shopping next week, and he welcomes further contributions from anyone wanting to participate in such a worthy

"This has been made possible through a lot of good, wonderful, kind people making donations to us for the 'Shop With The Sheriff," Henderson said. "We have had from small to huge donations for this ... a lot of money that's been given to us for these kids, so the people of our community have been very helpful for us.' To take place next Monthe trip will feature an afternoon meal before the chilto switch things up with a new special shopping experience at about the people involved.

Towns County Family assisted Henderson in selecting 30 to 50 kids aged kindergarten through fifth grade for who, without such programs, would likely go without much – if anything – under their trees Christmas morning.

The sheriff sees the program as an opportunity to conduct outreach between his department and the community he has sworn to protect and serve, including the building of relationships with local youth who will one day inherit the responsibilities of running and safeguarding the county.

be able to do something good for our kids and let them see us in a light that's good, not a bad light," Henderson said. "I think it gives a greater respect for law enforcement.

"And we all know it's a for giving, and the giving Connection with the schools needs to be to our kids. That's what we want to do, and we're excited about it."

'Shop With The Sheriff' the program; these are children is but one of several initiatives by the Sheriff's Office targeting positive engagement with local children. Henderson's office has also escorted school buses for youth sporting events and promoted "Junior Deputies" in the past year, with additional interaction opportunities in the

> "There's nothing more rewarding than what we're doing right here," Henderson said of the new Christmas program. We just want to do all we can "It's good for all of us to for our kids in the community that may not have the kind of Christmas we want them to have. So, we want to try to brighten that up.

'I don't know how you can do anything that's more "A lot of these kids are heartfelt than that right there, going to go away saying, you and the smiles on their little facknow, those guys are good guys, es will just do it all for you."

Remembering Reece: A Farmer for All Seasons

Byron Herbert Reece was a "Farmer for All Seasons." At the foothills of the Appalachian Mountain chain in the beautiful Choestoe Valley of Union County, Hub Reece was a self-proclaimed "Farmer First and Writer Sec-

Springtime was the morning of the year when Reece rose before dawn and prepared for the turning of the recently thawed earth. It was exciting to feel the cool of the spring mornings, where all the elements would come together to produce food from the tiny seeds and plants that he would place carefully in the fresh sod. When the afternoon spring rains came, one could smell the freshness of the earth and feel the warmth of the sun. He began to see the rewards of his planning and labor as the tiny green plants responded and pushed through the soil. The warmth of the Summer sun on the perfectly rowed crops of corn, peppers, potatoes, beans and tomatoes rewarded his daily discipline and toil. In Autumn, the long days of harvesting began and preparation of food for the cold Winter ahead.

chopping of wood, preparation of the ground, care of the livestock, care of the land, gathering of the crops and preparation of food left little time for er of modest success; and after ist, Byron Herbert Reece. much else during the daylight that, a poet of surpassing ge- Jerri Duncan Gill, Chair

Byron Herbert Reece

hours. Reece's second love was poetry, and his love of the land inspired his thoughts and reflections of the day that he recorded long into the night by firelight. In Winter, he used his time wisely in studying the writings of American and European writers and recording his thoughts. Reece spoke from his heart and his everyday experiences as a farmer, as one who was well read, as one who loved and appreciated classical and beautiful music, as one who loved his family

The sharpening of tools, Reece, "Mountain Singer," Raymond Cook says of him, "Byron Herbert Reece was no poseur. He was what he seemed: first of all, a dirt farm-nius." Editor Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution said that Reece was "one of the really great poets of our time, and one who stands with those of any other time.

A Fire Of Boughs by Byron Herbert Reece

At onset of December When the cold comes to stay bring boughs, leafed in May, To feed the cheerful ember And warm the wintry night. Folded into his fur,

The cat disdains to stir But dreams by firelight And I should follow suit Except that boughs in turning Shapeless in the burning Alarms the more than brute Caged within my being

That often plays at blind But stirs and shakes my mind With grave misgiving, seeing Wood fall from coal to ash, Its substance burned to nothing, Its luminescent clothing, Its shine, its flash, Expended, one with night -And is not comforted That such translation shed

Both warmth and light.

"Remembering Re-In his biography of ece" is contributed by the Byron Herbert Reece Society, whose purpose is to preserve, perpetuate and promote the literary and cultural legacy of the Georgia mountain poet/novel-mentors, so the committee is hopeful for future buy-in by the Union County School System and local businesses.

Speaking Contest...from Page 1A

Already, the nation of the current crop of Top of Georgia organizers has and third place winners. garnered greater student accessibility and mentoring by way of the Young Harris College Department of Communication Studies, which as a new sponsor has made room for 40 students to participate in the upcoming contest. With continued interest, the program could expand to 60 in the next year.

Certainly, things are looking promising enough that Chotiner said he wouldn't be investing so much time and dedication to the program if he wasn't sure it would grow into something much more monumental.

Of course, now that the college is sponsoring the event, rewards for participants have grown. There's $2,000 in total prize money up for grabs, but the biggest prize is a Young Harris College scholarship of up to $5,000, offering college experience to students who may not get the chance otherwise.

winner of the contest's High School Division will receive been discussions involving similar scholarships for second

The Top of Georgia Student Development Steering Committee is made up of organizer Gerry Chotiner, YHC Professor of Communication Stud-Professor of Communication Studies and Psychology Am-Circuit District Attorney Jeff torical Society Member Betty gmail.com.

Only the first-place Phillips, Towns County GOP Chair Betsy Young, Speaking Contest Chair Charlotte Sleczthe scholarship, but there have kowski and Speaking Contest

Secretary Terrylynne Marshall. Interested parties should be aware that there will be six training sessions at Young Harris College between Jan. 20 and March 2, 2022. All meetings will fall on Thursdays from 4-5 p.m., and each student must be ies Jennifer Hallett and Assistant prepared to deliver a four to six-minute speech.

To apply for participation byre Ponivas, Enotah Judicial or contact the committee with interest as a mentor or sponsor, Langley, Towns County His- email topofgeorgiastudent@

DRIVE A LITTLE... SAVE A LOT!!!

See Sales Manager Tom Bailey For Your Next Car or Truck Purchase!

Gold Certified

Visit our website at www.jackyjoneschryslerdodgejeep.com JACKY JONES

Hayesville, NC • (828) 389-1958

Christmas Fun...from Page 1A

Children had great fun decorating cookies using supplies donated by Ingles during Light Photo by Lowell Nicholson Up Hiawassee Dec. 4.

"A lot of people do not have big family circles, and "We are gladly going most families do not have a lot of to be helping between 40-50 money during this time, which kids, and we just want to thank is why we are glad to be doing our 'Shop With The Sheriff' on County for making all of this Dec. 13, to take less fortunate possible," the sheriff said.

the wonderful people of Towns

Winners of the Sher-

Office Christmas Parade float contest were Peach State Federal Credit Union in First Place, Towns County Lions Club with Miss Georgia Mountain Fair Corrina Luckenbach in Second Place, and

Congrats to Peach State Federal Credit Union for winning First Place in the Sheriff's Office Christmas Parade over the weekend, pictured here with Sheriff Henderson. Photo/Facebook

Knights of Columbus donate coats to Towns County Schools

L-R: Rick Graff, Amy Gibby Rosser and Glenn Harahand for the local Knights of Columbus coat donation Nov. 29. Photo by Lowell Nicholson

By Jeremy Foster Towns County Herald Staff Writer

On Monday, Nov. 29, the Knights of Columbus Council 11746 from St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church of Blairsville delivered winter parkas for six boys and six girls in need to the Family Connection Office at Towns County Schools.

The goal of the Coats for Kids program is to ensure that no child in North America goes without a coat during the win-

Through the dedication of Knights of Columbus councils across the U.S. and Canada, hundreds of thousands of new winter coats have been distributed to children since the program's inception.

Council 11746 representatives on hand for the donation were Grand Knight Rick Graff, Deputy Grand Knight Glenn Harahand, and Secretary Ralph Kwiatkowski.

"In the United States and Canada, this year so far, we have distributed over 134,000 coats, Kwiatkowski said. "Last year, due to the pandemic, we only distributed 103,049 coats. In Georgia this year, 'K of C' councils have distributed 4,392 coats. (Coats for Kids) is always on our calendar for this time of year."

raises money using various fundraisers throughout each year, including breakfasts and dinners in the church, the proceeds of which go into the organization's general funding.

charities from that, and we that are studying to become priests," Harahand said. "But mainly, it is primarily through by a referral basis from parents donations that we are able to and administration, and we achieve this.

"Boxes (of coats) come age. Last year we picked high school, but this year we picked middle school so we can fairly alternate between each group."

been involved with the St. Francis-affiliated council for three years now, but the council tion program for close to 20

"This is just a small part of our overall mission," Graff said. "We have four founding principles: charity, unity, fraternity and patriotism.'

Amy Gibby Rosser is the Towns County Family Con- email ralphk41@gmail.com or nection coordinator at Towns call County Schools, and she said with Family Connection may Family Connection has worked be reached at argibby@townwith the Knights of Columbus scountyschools.org or 706-896for several years on multiple 4131, ext. 1233.

Harahand said the group projects, including the Special

'This is our second year with the coat drive, and in the past, we have served approximately 200-250 children community-wide for (giving during "And we donate to the Christmas season)," Gibby ies from that, and we Rosser said, "including clothalso still support seminarians ing and toys, which is about 20% of our school population.

'(The kids) usually come make sure that need is handled. People can sponsor a family/ in arranged by approximate kids or make a monetary donation if they are inclined to help out for the underprivileged."

Towns County Principal Roy Perren was elated with the Grand Knight Graff has coat drive, calling it "very awesome" and "a great thing that helps our students out."

"The generosity of our has been doing the coat dona- community has always been amazing through the years, and not only us, but our students really appreciate these efforts,"

People desiring more information or wanting to contact the local Knights of Columbus Council about how to help may 706-870-0819. Rosser